PROJECT SUMMARY

Appalachian Service Project will use ARISE funding to establish three state disaster response and recovery hubs in Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia. Impacting 20 rural counties, these hubs will expand state capacity to provide disaster response services, construct new homes, and make critical repairs for low-income homeowners. The hubs will also engage and train a local network of first responders and community organizations on disaster mitigation and response best practices.

Appalachian Service Project and its partners bring a combined $4,051,556 in matching funds to this project, which is expected to improve 34 communities, create 14 jobs, and serve 230 participants through disaster recovery training at the end of the 5-year performance period.
